INTRODUCTION

Banking today is a niche career for enthusiasts in the fields of commerce and accounting. With new banks registering every year owing to privatization of services, the industry provides sufficient room for graduates from many fields. The field also offers a broad array of services such as giving advice related to investment and insurance, exchange of foreign currency and acting as trustees

The financial and banking sectors are the barometers of the economy. As 'merchants' in money in the short and long term, banking and financial sector practitioners get knowledge for career growth in the areas of economics, monetary systems, financial- business- and management accounting, risk assessment and management, credit management, investment analysis and decisions, financial planning, public governance and accountability.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

Both direct and indirect entrants who wish to enter these exciting fields or to improve their knowledge to gain promotion or otherwise improve their potential.
